A brief write-up about your Event (in about 300 words) :   The Department of Commerce organized an insightful seminar titled "Simulation Courses: Bridging Theory and Practice", aimed at highlighting the importance of simulation-based learning in contemporary education and professional development. The seminar, held for the benefit of commerce students, focused on the growing significance of experiential learning tools that bridge the gap between classroom theory and real-world practice. Through this initiative, students were introduced to simulation courses as an effective medium for gaining hands-on experience and applying theoretical concepts in realistic scenarios. The session was led by Ms. Parvish K., an esteemed resource person known for her expertise in innovative teaching methodologies and professional training. She provided valuable insights into how simulation-based learning enhances critical thinking, problem-solving abilities, and industry preparedness among students. Ms. Parvish K. also demonstrated practical examples of simulation environments, emphasizing their impact on decision-making skills and overall academic engagement. Her interactive approach encouraged active student participation and fostered a deeper understanding of the subject matter.
