The event, held at Shri Mhalasa Devi Temple in Madhalamaj, Mandre-Pedne, was part of the college's "College to Village, Campus to Community" initiative, reinforcing its commitment to taking education beyond the classroom. The program, conducted by the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) in collaboration with Dhavrukh NGO under a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU), aimed to educate the rural population about index funds and mutual funds, aligning with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goal 8: Decent Work and Economic Growth. Dr. Ujvala Hanjunkar, Vice Principal and HOD of Commerce, extended a warm welcome to the 65 participants, including villagers and guests, setting an inclusive tone for the evening. Dr. Arun Ramakant Marathe, IQAC Convenor, introduced the theme, emphasizing the college's vision of societal well-being through accessible education. The highlight of the event was the insightful sessions by the resource persons. Shri Sachin Vasant Padhye, a financial market expert from Australia, broke down complex investment concepts into simple, relatable terms. He explained how index funds, with their low-cost and diversified nature, can be a powerful tool for long-term wealth creation, especially for individuals with limited financial knowledge. Using real-life examples, he demonstrated how disciplined investing in such instruments could lead to financial independence, even for rural households. Shri Vikramaditya Panshikar, a Jyotishshree and financial awareness advocate, blended traditional wisdom with modern financial principles. He highlighted the importance of aligning financial decisions with personal goals and life stages, drawing parallels between astrological planning and systematic investment strategies. His engaging interaction made the session relatable, resonating deeply with the audience. Shri. Panshikar also acknowledged the College Principal, Prof. Bhushan V. Bhave vision of "education for all" and his unwavering support for such initiatives reflects the college's mission to bridge urban-rural knowledge gaps and foster inclusive growth. Shri Rudresh Mhamal, President of Dhavruk NGO and Assistant Professor & IQAC Member at the college, played a pivotal role in coordinating the event. His efforts, along with those of the college and NGO, underscored the shared vision of empowering rural communities through education. The program concluded with a heartfelt vote of thanks by Shri Raviraj Pednekar, Treasurer of Dhavruk NGO, who expressed gratitude to the college, resource persons, the Tample authorities and participants for making the event a success. The enthusiastic participation and interactive discussions underscored the villagers' eagerness to embrace financial literacy. This initiative stands as a testament to Vidya Prabodhini College's dedication to societal transformation, proving that education, when extended beyond campus walls, can truly empower communities and break barriers to financial growth.
