The students will be made aware of the various types of research that takes place in Humanities. 4. The students will be more careful and avoid common mistakes that researchers make.

A brief write-up about your Event (in about 300 words) :

Students at the TYBABED are required to conduct research in Humanities as a part of the demands of the BABED program. However, many find themselves lost while identifying topics for research as well as conducting research. The workshop is expected to detangle the confusion and help them on the path to conducting good research.

The Mechanics of Research at Vidya Prabodhini College, Porvorim

The Department of English at Vidya Prabodhini College, Porvorim, in collaboration with its Research and Development Cell, organised a workshop, 'The Mechanics of Research' for TYBABEd Humanities students. The objective of the workshop was to equip students with essential research skills, methodologies, and guidelines, which are crucial for their academic and professional growth.

The workshop was led by Dr Susan Deborah, assistant professor of English at MES College of Arts and Commerce, who served as the resource person. Dr Susan began the session with an orientation that aimed to clarify the fundamental aspects of conducting a research project. She discussed various key characteristics of research, its outcomes, and the methodologies employed in the research process.

To enhance understanding, Dr Susan facilitated a group discussion among the students, encouraging them to explore and select specific and unique project topics. She provided insights into the methods of data collection and analysis, as well as the importance of conducting a thorough literature review. Additionally, she emphasised the aims and objectives of conducting research in the field of Humanities, guiding students on how to identify research gaps and frame relevant objectives.

The workshop provided a comprehensive overview of the research methodologies commonly followed in Humanities, ensuring that students left with a clear understanding of the research process.

The session concluded on a positive note, with students expressing their appreciation and satisfaction with the knowledge gained.

This workshop which was attended by 42 students marked a significant step in the academic journey of the TYBABEd Humanities students, preparing them to undertake their own research projects with confidence and competence. The college has been accredited with an A grade by NAAC, achieving a score of 3.22.
