Objective of the Event	:To inform students about library resources and services

Outcome of the Event :

Students will become aware about library resources , services, rules and functioning of the library.

A brief write-up about your Event (in about 300 words) :

A library orientation is an important introduction that helps first-year students become familiar with the library's resources, services, and facilities. During the orientation, students learn how to locate books, use the online catalog, access digital resources such as e-books and journals, and understand the library's rules and borrowing procedures. The session also introduces students to study spaces, reference services, and the support provided by library staff. By participating in the orientation, students develop essential information literacy skills that enable them to find reliable sources, conduct research effectively, and make the best use of the library throughout their academic journey. Overall, library orientation helps students become confident, independent, and responsible users of library resources.
