Weeding out Policy

Weeding out documents means removing documents that are found not useful or not serviceable from a library. Documents so removed from the library may be completely discarded where they are not serviceable or donated to some other library where they may be useful. Weeding out policy means a policy statement on: what materials are to be weeded out? when to weed out? who should weed out? how to weed out? and what to do with weeded out materials?

Weeding out policy is implemented to weed out unwanted stock in the library and to retain the stock quality. The weeding-out outdated collection is very necessary to keep the library up-to-date, for space saving, and to create space for the latest collection in the library.

A list of weeding out documents can be prepared at any time throughout the year when the library staff comes across documents that may have to be stopped from circulation as they are found to be worn out and unusable. Weeding out should be done after the annual stock verification process.

Weeding out Process

1. Principal of the college will form a committee consisting of a faculty member, members of the library committee, and the librarian.

2. Library staff will assist the committee and the librarian in preparing the list of outdated books that are no more in circulation or books having older editions that are not in use.

3. For core textbooks/book bank books, whenever any new edition is procured for all students or if a course is discontinued, then after five years gestation period, all such books will be included in the weed-out list by the library staff.

4. For subjects where new policies or rules change every year e.g. taxation, old editions can be included in the list after five years gestation period.

5. Books, which are torn off, or which are mutilated will also be included in the weed-out list by the library staff.

6. For areas like Computers/Information Technology, all books related to obsolete technologies/software/hardware will also be included in the weed-out list after a gap of five years.

7. Ephemeral material (e.g., Newsletters, Progress Reports, Annual Reports, Pamphlets, Book catalogs), including those materials that lose their value after a certain period of time. These documents should be recommended for weeding out after an interval of five years.

8. A compiled list by the library staff with details of the books, cost, copies available in the library, year of purchase, accession number, and reasons for inclusion in the weed-out list will be put before the Weed-out committee members.

9. Weed-out committee will deliberate upon the list and check if there are chances of such books use again in the future or if any of these books may be used in other program of the institute, if any. Committee will also look into the aspect that no book termed as classic or needed for research purposes for posterity is included in the list.

10. Committee will also verify the physical availability of such books to avoid the inclusion of books stolen from the library in this list. Faculty members of each specialization area deputed in the committee will endorse weeding-out books related to their area of specialization.

11. Once the committee is satisfied, committee members will recommend weeding-out of the collection from the library to the Principal. The principal has complete discretion to accept/reject fully or partially committee recommendations keeping the institute's interest in mind. Once the Principal approves the committee recommendations in writing, the library will initiate the process of weeding-out that collection from the library and update entries in the Accession Register and in library automation software, mentioning the reasons and date of weeding-out of any book.

12. Printed magazines and newspapers which serve only immediate requirements may also be included for weeding-out to create space for future issues in the periodicals shelves. The library need to maintain all magazines for a minimum period of 5 years and newspapers for minimum of six months before including them for weeding-out consideration.

Disposal of the Weeded out material

1. The documents approved for weeding out may be offered to the faculty, students, and staff on a first-come-first-served basis, and a minimum amount can be charged from staff and students towards these documents. A list of the discarded documents may be posted on the notice board. The waiting time for discarded books could be a maximum of one month.

2. Printed magazines, newspapers, and other ephemeral materials can be sold out to the scrap vendor selected by the college.

3. Books and other materials completely worn out, mutilated, and irreparable can also be sold to scrap vendors selected by the college.

4. If the books are in good condition, particularly if they are older editions of reference sources like encyclopedias, handbooks, etc. they may be donated to other libraries which are not in a position to buy such costly books.

5. When documents are weeded out, it should be done with the knowledge of the weeding out Committee and after the approval of the Principal. The Accession

Register should carry the entry that the document is written off; quoting reasons and date of weeding-out. The shelf list, catalogue, and other records should be rectified by deleting the entries relating to the weeded-out documents.

Weeding out Committee

The committee to weed out library material consists of a faculty member from each specialization area, members of the Library committee, and the Librarian.

Following are the members of the weeding out committee:

Dr. Anil Thosare

Dr. Ujvala Hanjunkar

Dr. Sagar Mali

Dr. Varsha Ingalhalli

Dr. Sangeeta Dessai

Mr. Nitesh Naik

The weeding out Committee will meet after the annual stock verification of the library if there are any library documents to be weeded out.
