Talk on Goan literature in English

The Department of English in collaboration with the Department of Library and Information Science of Vidya Prabodhini College of Commerce, Education, Computer and Management, Porvorim, organised a talk by Dr Glenis Maria Mendonca, Associate Professor in English, Carmel College, Nuvem, and a book exhibition on the theme, 'Goan Literature in English - Trends and Perspectives' for students and faculty. Kedarnath Tadkod, associate professor, English department and Nitesh Naik, librarian, were the coordinators. Kajal Naik, student of SYBABED, was the Student Coordinator. Around 80 students and faculty members attended the talk.

The programme commenced with Konkani songs sung by students of the department, Fabel Fernandes and Pratham Balachandra Naik, with Saidatt Varadkar at the Ghumat. Dr Bhushan Bhawe, principal, highlighting the objective of the talk and said that it was essential to create an awareness and interest about Goan literature, its trends and perspectives in today's youth. He also expressed the hope that the talk would open new opportunities for discussion and research based on Goa and its literature. He also urged the students to read and contribute to Goan literature.

Dr Mendonca stated that Goan literature is a vast ocean and reflects varied aspects of Goan life, history and multi-layered culture. She took the students on a virtual tour of the vast collection of books that have been published in Konkani, English, Marathi, Portuguese and French, which have been translated into different languages across India and the world. She highlighted on the perspectives of authors on Goan history and culture, different trends and about translations of literature. The talk ended with the bilingual Konkani-English song, 'Mandovi' composed by Alfred Rose, being sung by the guest speaker, enthralling the audience. Kajal Naik proposed the vote of thanks. The event was compered by Sidra Khan.
